GNFAC,

Toured up Specimen Creek today, it's starting to fill in down low. We got 5-6 good whumphs while skinning around. It was snowing S-1 all day with light winds. We saw a group skiing a low angle ridge with a fresh crown off to the side of the ridge where it's steeper, maybe 10-20' from their tracks. It looked very much like they remote triggered it but I can't be sure. The slide was R1D1.5, definitely broke into old snow. They light was to flat to get a good photo.

Psyched on powder skiing!
