Activity

Skiing

Skied the Throne, the wind was starting to move the snow by noon and build slabs, which were touchy, but small and isolated, so we were able get past that. We did find the sloughing of loose snow at the roll-over to be pretty significant, and had to proceed with caution so as not to get too much moving. The cold, old snow doesn't want to stick to anything, and certainly won't hold a load if it get's a slab on it.
